

Animals in World War I

Horses

Cavalry horses were used in first battles but not in trenches. Teams of horses were used to pull guns to and from the fronts. Royal Scots Greys practising a cavalry charge before they go into battle.

What do dogs do?

Dogs always stayed with their owners or soldiers to keep guard of them. A German messenger dog leaps a trench on the Western Front, 1917.

Introduction

People stom around the world fought in WWI but do you want to know about animals in WWI? Is it you do then read on!

Pigeons in WWI

Although 100,000 Pigeons were used to deliver messages, 200,000 had died, it was dangerous because soldiers were trying to shoot it down.

Conclusion

In conclusion, animals in WWI had dangerous jobs. Animals had incredibly vital jobs by carrying much needed equipment. 100 years later these animals were forgotten. This must change!

