DOGS IN WAR

Many dogs served their country in WWI. Because dogs were hard working and trusted, some of their most vital jobs like carrying medical supplies in no man's land and delivering messages. Sometimes dogs who kept soldiers happy became mascots.

I hope you now understand how important animals were in WWI.

PIGEONS IN WWI

Pigeons carried many messages to WWI bases. These amazing flying animals delivered ninety nine percent of letters. Most of the time some pigeons were kept in bases, some were eaten! They were sent from tanks and trenches.

HORSES IN WWI

Cavalry horses used in battles could not win war; they sought ^{without} only still not win! Horses mostly got muddied and got stuck in barbed wire then died. Once they were taken to medical hospitals they were hurt and maybe they could sight again.
