We're learning about the monarchs in Tudor times.
The numbers look a bit different to how we say them.

Roman Numerals are written with a combination of symbols.

$I = 1$ $V = 5$ $X = 10$

$L = 50$ $C = 100$

A Roman numeral is written as a combination of symbols. When a smaller symbol is written after a larger one, it is added. When a smaller symbol is written before a larger one, it is subtracted.
